

CHAPTER V CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

After analyzing the data, conclusion can be drawn as follows:

1. The five types of illocutionary acts are found in Piers Morgan Tonight Talk Show, they are: (1) Representatives that is intended for affirming/asserting, believing, concluding, conveying, claiming, denying, describing, informing, predicting, conceding. According to the general discourse in the talk show program, this is certainly occurs because the host as the speaker will exactly drag out some hiding information from the listener as the hearer and then delivering them to the audiences by informing and other kinds of types sentences belongs to Representatives. (2) Directives that is intended for requesting, suggesting, pleading, prohibiting/forbidding, approving, and questioning, (3) Commisives that is intended for promising, threatening, offering, and swearing, (4) Expressives that is intended for congratulating, pain, likes, dislikes, joy, sorrow, welcoming, greeting and thanking, (5) Declaratives that is intended for declaring, bidding and blessing. The total number of those five types of illocutionary acts are 422 utterances, this utterances were uttered by Morgan and Winfrey as the interviewer and interviewee during an hour conversations on the talk show program. The total number of Representatives are 320 utterances (54,50%). The total number of Directives are 85 utterances (20,14%). The total number of Commisives are 20 utterances (4,73%). The total number of Expressive are 50 utterances (11,84%), and the total number of Declaratives are 37 utterances (8,79%).

2. The data findings showed that Representatives is dominantly used in this talk show. At the second position is occupied by Directives because the sentences uttered by Morgan and Winfrey did not contain a lot of command line which makes the hearer do something by commanding, ordering, requesting, suggesting, and warning sentences which certainly belongs to Directives. This statement assumed that in the Talk show program the using of directives must not happen, and so do with the Expressives which concern on the speaker's feelings and Declaratives which aimed to change the world via utterances.

Commissives as the lowest indicates which aimed to commit the speakers to some future action is rarely used because in the reality of Piers Morgan Tonight Talk Show as the inspiring program by inviting reliable informant intended for giving information to the audiences with the specific topic in its every episode not for making some future action such as promising, threatening, and swearing.

3. The most dominant type of illocutionary acts used in Piers Morgan Tonight talk show is Representatives (54,50%). This implies that the Representatives plays a great role in the talk show program. It means that affirming/asserting, believing, concluding, conveying, claiming, denying, describing, informing, predicting, conceding and reporting is almost always seen in this talk show.

B. Suggestion

The followings are written as the suggestion related with the conclusions above:
