

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

5.1 Conclusion

This study was concerned on variation of Karonese language in Tanah Karo, based on the analysis the conclusion were stated as:

1. There are two types of variation of language that used in variation of Karonese language, there are Phoneme and lexical. Phoneme and lexical were used in the three places in Tanah Karo, they are Tigapanah, Tiganderket and Tigabinanga. Phoneme from the three places in Tanah Karo are dominantly same although some of them are different. It is also happened with lexical, in three places in Tanah Karo the lexical are dominantly same although some of them are different. So, phoneme and lexical are very influenced the variation of Karonese language in Tanah Karo.
2. Regional dialect and Arena or Geography are the causes of Variation of Karonese language. Regional dialect of the variation of language for every places are different but the meaning are same from the other places. Arena or Geography is the most dominant causes of the variation of Karonese language in Tanah Karo. So, The causes of Variation Karonese language in Tanah Karo are caused by regional dialect and arena or geography

5.2 Suggestions

Based on the above conclusion, the following suggestion are given as the follow:

1. It is suggested that other researcher of Variation of any language should develop the theory of variation of language, and the further research to analyses the other tribes such as: Javanese, or Nias language
2. The use of variation of Karonese Language will influence the readers especially Karonese and It is suggested that linguist teacher or further researcher should write more books or references about Karonse language.

