CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Based on the data results analysis, the researcher comes to a conclusion that the existing writing material used by the teacher in teaching descriptive text were not appropriate with the students' needs, less attractive to motivate and help students in studying writing descriptive text. Therefore, the students needed interesting, attractive and appropriate materials that helped them to learn and write descriptive text. The solution for the students' need was developing a new material for teaching writing descriptive text based on local culture of North Sumatra, especially Bataknese Culture to make them more interested and attractive in learning and improve their writing skill. The development of writing materials based on local culture in North Sumatra which followed the R & D phases by Sugiyono (2014). The steps are (1) Collecting Data (Need Analysis); (2) Designingof Product; (3) Validating of Product; (4) Revising of Product; (5) Final Product. Based on the material development, the average score of the material validation is 4.6 (Very Good). It indicated that the material was already valid and appropriate to use as learning material for students particularly for teaching writing descriptive text.

B. Suggestions

Based on the conclusions above, the writer suggests that the teacher should do the need analysis regularly to meet the most appropriate and interesting material for the students. The writing materials based on local culture of North Sumatra is one of interesting materials, but teachers should should be able and creative to create the other interesting and appropriate materials with the students needs. In this way, the students can achieve their best achievement in writing and composing the new text.

This research only focused on developing the writing materials on descriptive text for grade eight students at MTsN 3 Medan and only focus develop three units of materials with the topic is related of local culture in North Sumatra especially Bataknese Culture. It is expected to other researcher to develop writing materials for other grade and topic based on the students' problem and needs.
