C. Comments to the authors (You may use another sheet of paper.)

Methodology section must be included. The population under study, context, instruments and analysis strategies must be determined.

Finally, in the "Conclusions" section, the author must submit approval or not of the objectives, link the findings and contrast with previous work and agree on the pros and cons of the debate used. In addition, future research pathways can be used.

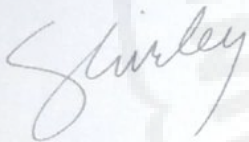

The index of public participation in searches in the low category should be discussed in a more detailed description. For readers to easily consider, this research is good in discussing the direction and purpose of a message following the low participation of people in sports in the city of Medan
