Data collection method of Indonesian Cake Learning Outcomes using tests and data collection asks to open a business using questionnaires, data analysis using correlational descriptive techniques, analysis requirements with normality tests, linearity tests. Meanwhile, test the hypothesis with product moment correlation.

Based on the results of this study, the level of tendency in Indonesian Cake Learning Outcomes of students is included in the fairly inclined category of 33 percent. The level of interest in opening a business, including the student category, tends to be sufficient, at 50 percent. The results of the product moment correlation analysis show that there is a positive and significant relationship between the Learning Outcomes of Indonesian Cakes and the Interest in Opening a Business with a value of rxy = 0.845 > rtable 0.361. This means that the higher the learning outcomes, the higher the student's interest in opening a business, the coefficient of determination of variable X to Y is 71.4 percent which indicates an interest in opening a business is determined by learning outcomes and 28.6 percent is determined by other variables outside this study.
