Dear Ichwan

Thank you for submitting your manuscript:

Studies on the Role of Newspapers Published in North Sumatra 1916 -1925 years in Indonesia's Independence Struggle
Azhari I et al.

Funders: you have stated during the submission process that this work has been funded by:
Universitas Negeri Medan (32,000,000)

As of 1st September 2020, Article Processing Charges (APCs) on F1000Research are based on article type rather than article length. Charges are payable once the article has been accepted for publication. A full explanation of the price transparency breakdown for the article type categories is available here.

WHAT WE DO NEXT

Before accepting your article: we will check content suitability, readability and manuscript format; adherence to ethical standards for the type of study; that the underlying data have been supplied (where appropriate); and that there is sufficient detail to enable others to replicate the study (if applicable).

Before publishing your article: if we accept your article, we will be in touch as soon as possible with any issues that need addressing. You will then receive a final proof of your article for approval, prior to publication.

WHAT YOU NEED TO DO NEXT

Before doing anything else, we need you to suggest at least 5 suitable reviewers to peer review your manuscript following publication (in accordance with our publishing model), should it be accepted. We ask that authors do not contact reviewers directly about the peer review process. We will need your reviewer suggestions before we can publish the article so we recommend identifying them now via your Suggest Reviewers page for this article. You can also access this page via the article's record at My Research >> Submissions.

Please quote the article number 53442 in any correspondence.

Kind regards

The F1000Research Team

Press releasing articles: Please avoid promoting articles in the media until the article has passed the open peer review process. Promotion on social media is encouraged once the article has been published; please ensure the full citation is included, as this contains the peer review status. Dear Ichwan,

Thanks for your email.

We are not aware of F1000Research's Scopus coverage ending. I believe that the years of coverage of 2021-2021 means that currently they only have content indexed until 2021 (i.e. that no papers published in 2022 have been indexed yet). So 2012-2021 are just the years that they have covered so far. Many other journals are the same <https://www.scopus.com/sourceid/21100199840?origin=resultslist>

I hope this makes sense.

Dear Ichwan,

Many thanks for your revisions.

Your introduction has improved, and most of your results. However, a lot of your results still seem to be in note form and should be more fleshed out.

Discussion: Your discussion seems to overlap a lot with your results section. You should ensure there's no repetition between these sections and that your discussion offers a balanced overview of the results.

In your methods you describe the elements of discourse analysis you are going to apply to your analysis, but this is not mentioned anywhere else in the article. Please make sure that your methodology is clear throughout the article.

Please can you clarify why you have changed your data availability statement? This should still indicate where the original sources can be accessed.

Please see the current manuscript attached with comments.

Dear Ichwan,

Many thanks for your revisions. These look good. However, there are still some issues with your methodology and results. Your methodology is a lot clearer, however your results don't show much evidence of analysis. Please elaborate on how you categorised the articles into the themes using clear, detailed examples. You mention macro, micro, and superstructure, but you don't show your specific findings from the texts.

I hope this makes sense. I have also attached the current version of the manuscript for you to work from. I have made some minor edits so please make sure your meaning is the same.

Dear Editors,

Sorry I have to say this.

I have read the manuscript you attached. After I compare it with the revision I sent on November 4, 2021, both of the manuscripts are not the same. There are mistakes. In the methods section, why are comments still appearing in your previous revision? Even though I fixed it. You also combine my previous revision with the new one, thus confusing me because it doesn't match the last revision I submitted.

Please re-check the manuscript you sent to me. I am very disappointed, why you combine my old manuscript with the one I have corrected. It was so messed up.

Dear Ichwan,

Please accept my apologies for the confusion caused here. The editorial team conducts our checks using the 'compare' function in Word. I compared the most recent revised manuscript you sent me on Nov 4th with the previous version I sent you with comments. This is so we can see exactly what has been changed/added.

In this case, I made the mistake of leaving some comments which had already been addressed, as you say. Apologies for the oversight here.

I believe the confusing appearance of the document is how Word has displayed it. I have attached a cleaner version here which I hope makes it easier for you. This version just shows all my new edits and comments.

Dear Ichwan,

Thank you for your revisions. These look better. As Table 4 is quite long, however, I would suggest removing it from the manuscript and uploading it to your Figshare project, and instead summarising its contents in the Results section of your manuscript. Does this sound ok? This should help make it clearer how your results/analysis relate to your methodology, as this is still not clear enough.

Look forward to receiving your completed manuscript soon.

Dear Editors,

Many thanks for your comments and suggestions. In the previous revision you asked me to make the result section clearer. I revised it by referring to articles with the theme of discourse analysis. Table 4 is a description that explains in more detail about the macrostructure, superstructure, and microstructure that I use as my research method.

To be honest, I don't understand the standard by "not clear enough" you mean. How to make it clear enough for you? Can you give an example? I have been looking for an example of the articles that are similar to my field of research on https://f1000research.com/browse/articles?term0=Humanities_and_the_arts but I can't find it. Dear Ichwan,

Thank you for your email.

I'm sorry I didn't explain this well. Your results table is good, however tables are usually in addition to the written description of results. The contents of the table alone don't explain the results fully for the reader. This is why you should write out, in paragraph form, a detailed summary of the results of your macrostructure, superstructure, and microstructure analysis. Table 4 currently is not a description of this analysis because it is in note form.

As you point out, it is hard to find an example of a results section similar to your subject, as these vary. But this article is a good example of a succinct results section that summarises all elements studied and the findings: A bibliometric study on the research... | F1000Research

Dear Ichwan,

Your Results are now fine and don't require any more changes. However, Tables 4, 5, and 6 are still too long to be included in the manuscript. You need to either significantly condense these for inclusion in the manuscript (and upload the longer versions to your Figshare), or remove them from the manuscript and upload them to Figshare instead and just refer to them where appropriate in your results section. E.g., you can write 'the data can be found in underlying data'.

You will need to remove the tables and upload them to Figshare yourself, I cannot do this.

Dear Ichwan,

As our offices will be closing from the 24th December – 4th January, if you could send me your final manuscript by midday tomorrow, I will be able to send it to our production team.

Thanks,
Jennifer

Dear Editors,

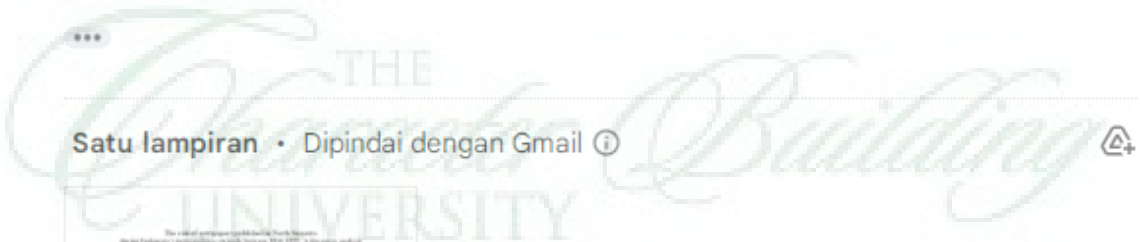

Thank you very much for your invaluable advice and help. I'm sorry I couldn't meet the deadline for sending the final manuscript that you requested because I had a problem logging into my figshare account.

In this email I attach my final manuscript which has been revised according to your suggestions in the previous email. Table 4,5,6 I moved to my figshare account. In the results section I also added a comment that tables 4,5,6 are available in the underlying data.

I'm much obliged for your help.

Best regards
Ichwan Azhari

Dear Ichwan,

Thanks for uploading your tables to Figshare.

I have noticed that the removed tables have confused the numbering of the tables. To make this clearer for readers, I would suggest removing the numbers from the titles of tables 4, 5, and 6, so that they are just titled 'The macrostructural analysis results from indigenous newspapers in North Sumatra (1916-1925)' etc. You can then refer to them in the manuscript as their file names. You can also renumber the tables in the manuscript accordingly.

Your data is currently in various different projects. Please can you upload all of your data to the same project, under the same DOI, so that it's easily accessible.

I hope this is all clear. Again, thank you for the patience with this.

Dear Ichwan Azhari,

The proof of your article article53442 is now available for review at:

<https://ops.spi-global.com/eProofingF1000/VerifyTokenandAuthenticate.aspx?token=a/zx7Dim6oCezT4tJL2qQA&ChapterOrArticleOrBook=Article>

The proofing system is web-based and allows you to directly incorporate your corrections into the electronic files. The interface to make corrections works in a similar way to Word with track changes. A guide to help you use the system is available at the following link:

https://ops.spi-global.com/eProofingF1000/ViewProofingHelpGuide_Journals

N.B. Please use Google Chrome or Mozilla Firefox browsers. These are the current browsers that support the system.

Please follow the instructions given in the proofing system regarding corrections and complete your review within 3 day(s) of receipt of this email.

You are responsible for correcting your proofs. Errors not found may appear in the published journal. The proof is sent to you for correction of typographical errors only. Revision of the substance of the text is not permitted, unless discussed with the editor of the journal. Any necessary changes should be entered via the proofing system. Please be sure to answer all queries present, as the system will require you to resolve the queries before submission of corrections. Any outstanding queries are listed in a column to the right of the proofs.

If you are unable to meet this deadline, if you encounter any problems, or if you have further questions, please e-mail the below address and reference your article ID in all correspondence.

Please note that connecting an ORCID account to F1000Research requires the account holder to sign in to both F1000Research and ORCID, therefore it isn't possible for us to add ORCID badges for your co-authors on their behalf. When the article is published, they will receive an email encouraging them to connect their ORCID account to F1000Research. If they do this, their ORCID badge will be displayed next to their name.

If there are any outstanding queries on your reviewer suggestions, then we will be in touch with you shortly.

Best regards,

I apologize for the confusion I caused. Let's make things clear and not wasting time.

Thanks in advance.

Your article has received 127 views and the PDF has been downloaded 10 times.

A reviewer has agreed to review, but unfortunately their reports are very delayed, and potentially they may not be submitted. We would strongly recommend that you supply us with at least another 5 reviewer suggestions, from a wide range of countries worldwide, to minimize delay to the peer review process.

It sometimes happens that a reviewer who has agreed to review doesn't submit their report in a timely fashion, or doesn't provide one at all. Therefore we would recommend having some backup suggestions for reviewers to avoid any possible delay to peer review. Please send us your suggestions via Suggest Reviewers, where you will find a useful tool to help you find reviewers; you can also access this page via the article's record under My Research >> Submissions. I hope that you received my last email dated 05 April regarding issues with the peer review process for this article. F1000Research has an author-led peer review process, and I'm afraid without further suggestions for reviewers it is highly unlikely that your article will receive further reviews. We would strongly suggest that you supply us with at least another 5 reviewer suggestions to minimize any further delay to peer review.

Please send us your suggestions via your Suggest Reviewers page, where you will also find a useful tool to help you identify referee candidates (see also our reviewer criteria and tips for finding reviewers).

If you have any questions please don't hesitate to get in touch.

Dear Ichwan Azhari,

Thank you for your email.

As Robert Sibarani was recently invited to review your article, we will not be able to invite them again for a few months. In order to avoid reviewer fatigue, we try not to reinvite reviewers until a decent amount of time has passed.

A reviewer has agreed to review your article - we will let you know as soon as a report is published. It sometimes happens that a reviewer who has agreed to review doesn't submit their report in a timely fashion, or doesn't provide one at all. We have just published a peer review report for your article on F1000Research, which you can read here.

If you wish to respond to the reviewer, please go to the link above and click 'Respond to this report' below the report. When responding to a peer review report, please try and make sure you are logged into the account that you originally used for the submission of this article, otherwise we cannot identify your response as being from an author. Please allow up to one working day for your comments to appear. If you 'Track' the article, you will automatically be alerted to any other reports or comments made.

Reviewers award articles one of the following approval statuses as part of their reports:

Approved: No or only minor changes are required.

Approved with Reservations: The reviewer has asked for a number of small changes to the article, or specific, sometimes more significant revisions.

Not Approved: Crucial substantial revisions will be required for the paper to pass peer review. It is important to note that a Not Approved status is not a rejection.

NB: Your article will pass peer review and be indexed in PubMed, PMC, Scopus, Embase and other indexing sites, if you receive either two 'Approved' statuses, or two 'Approved with Reservations' statuses and one 'Approved' status from the reviewers.

In order to ensure that peer review proceeds quickly and you get at least one more report, we recommend that you suggest additional reviewers. Please visit Suggest Reviewers, where you will find a useful tool to help you find reviewers; you can also access this page via the article's record under My Research >> Submissions. See also our reviewer criteria and tips for finding reviewers.

We would recommend waiting for additional peer review reports before starting on any article revisions.

Dear Ichwan,

Thank you for your email and for your reviewer suggestions. We can confirm that we have received your suggestions for potential reviewers and they are now being checked that they meet our reviewer suitability criteria. We shall be in contact if any further action is required. Please feel free to suggest further reviewers, as the more names suggested the higher the chance someone will be available to review your article.

Just to let you know also, I will be assisting you with the peer review for your article moving forward. If you have any queries, please don't hesitate to contact us as we're always happy to help.

Dear Ichwan

Thank you for your recent reviewer suggestions but unfortunately, not all of them meet our reviewer criteria. We have listed below any that fall outside the criteria, with the specific reason:

Tolulope Odunayo Oladejo, Shazia Aziz:

We would generally expect reviewers to hold a PhD or MD in a relevant field, or otherwise have demonstrable expertise relating to your article. A reviewer should also usually have published at least three papers as the lead authors in the same field as your article, with at least one being published in the last five years. We were unable to find evidence of this, although please let us know if we have missed relevant experience or qualifications.

Please suggest 5 more reviewers so that we can proceed with the peer review. We recommend suggesting 5-10 people at a time, as the more names suggested the higher the chance someone will be available to review your article, but please continue to adhere to the reviewer criteria. Please visit your Suggest Reviewers page to add your suggestions.

Best regards,

Trina Soluta

Dear Ichwan

The role of newspapers published in North Sumatra during Indonesia's independence struggle between 1916-1925: A discourse analysis
Azhari I, Sidiq R and Purnamasari I

We have published another peer review report for your article in F1000Research at <https://f1000research.com/articles/11-249/v1#referee-response-145900>.

You have now received 2 peer review reports. Some of your reviewers had reservations and therefore your article has not yet passed peer review, which prevents it being indexed in bibliographic databases. (Once an article receives two 'Approved' statuses, or two 'Approved with Reservations' statuses and one 'Approved' status, it will be considered to have passed peer review.)

You can choose to revise your article at any time. However, another reviewer has agreed to submit their report within the next few weeks, and we would suggest that you do not submit a revised version until this report has been received in case this reviewer has additional comments.

As a reminder, the definitions of the approval statuses awarded by reviewers are:

Approved: No or only minor changes are required.

Approved with Reservations: The reviewer has asked for a number of small changes to the article, or specific, sometimes more significant revisions.

Not Approved: Crucial substantial revisions will be required for the paper to pass peer review. It is important to note that a Not Approved status is not a rejection.

To respond directly to the reviewer by adding a comment to their report (now, or at a later stage), please click the 'Respond to this report' button below the report. When responding to a peer review report, please try and make sure you are logged into the account that you originally used for the submission of this article, otherwise we cannot identify your response as being from an author. Please allow up to one working day for your comment to appear (comments explaining changes in the revised version of your article are usually published at the same time as the revised version).
