The author would also like to thank Mam Supraba Ika Sari, S.Pd., M.Pd., as the principal of SMA Negeri 5 Medan who has given me the time and opportunity to conduct research at the school. The author also thanks Mrs. Lamria Banjarnahor, S.Pd., M. Si., as a biology teacher who also gave permission and direction during the research. The author also does not forget to thank the students of class XI MIPA SMA Negeri 5 Medan who have been willing to coordinate during the research period.

On this occasion, the author would also like to thank and dedicate this thesis specifically to my parents, Mr. Pantun Pardede and Mrs. Juliana Simanjuntak. Thank you for the support, time, materials, love, and motivation during this education. Especially for the author's mother who has been a strong and calm mother for the author. For the author's father, the author realizes that he never forgets to pray and encourage in every situation. Thank you for always being an encouragement and prayer for the author. The author would also like to thank the author's sister, Devi Wany Pardede, who always provides support, the author's brother, Rainhard Pardede, S.T., who has paid for all the author's needs while studying at UNIMED and as the author's motivator to graduate on time, and the author's sister, Indah Eva Lina Pardede, who has supported the author and prayed for the author to complete this thesis.

Thanks also to BESP 2020 comrades in arms, thank you for all the ups and downs in lectures that the author cannot mention one by one. The author would also like to thanks to SIP IN (Asnawi, Trisna, Salamah, and Nindya) for being friends and sharing stories during their studies. We have gone through many stories together, the author sure, this college period will be a sweet memory to remember. Let's keep this friendship until the end because the author doesn't want this friendship to break. Finally, the author expresses her deepest gratitude to herself who has been strong, survived, kept her spirit, and continued to fight in dealing with every process that has been and will be faced. The author has tried her best in the preparation of this thesis, but the author fully realizes that this thesis still has many weaknesses, both in terms of content and language. With humbleness, the author expects suggestions and criticism from the readers.
