

CHAPTER V

CONSLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

After analyzing the data, conclusion are drawn as the following:

1. The movie Crazy Rich Asians, as a Stereotypes of Chinese towards American analysis, is an appropriate object. As the main figure of this movie, Rachel's character showed the perspective of Chinese that Rachel have a individualism and independent as American people. Character of Rachel also shows other character's attitude and does so in relation to her other characters. The movie shows the dominant stereotypes are Individualistic and Independent, that's how Chinese perceive American. Drawing on her solid experience in Singapore that way, Rachel also has a power even though almost all Chinese people in there don't like her.
2. According to (Lustig and Koester in Wiviana, 2014). Communication itself is a process associated with symbols in which people construct shared meaning. However some opinions say it is a matter of different perspectives for the analysis of fictional characters with real characters. Real life replicas are fictitious characters in literary works.
3. All forms of stereotypes on Rachel's character in the Crazy Rich Asian movie shows that family tree, community, caste, and finance are still the dominant forms in the perspective of Chinese in judging a person's personality. This makes Rachel as an American character uncomfortable, where Americans consider these private things not to be public consumption.

B. Suggestions

From the result of the research, the researcher suggest some points for who want to analyze the Stereotypes in Movie:

1. The researcher must have a thorough understanding of sociolinguistics theory, intercultural theory and be able to relate it to Stereotypes theories which cannot all match the studied movie.
2. The researcher should find the correct movie as a research object. Stereotypes was related with life pattern of the person and how it effect for their moral development. The structures of Stereotypes in Crazy Rich Asian movie which describe the point of view of Asian to American people.
3. It is suggested to the next researcher who intersted in Crazy Rich Asians movie to conduct the research about the Stereotypes of Rachel character.
