

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

A. Conclusions

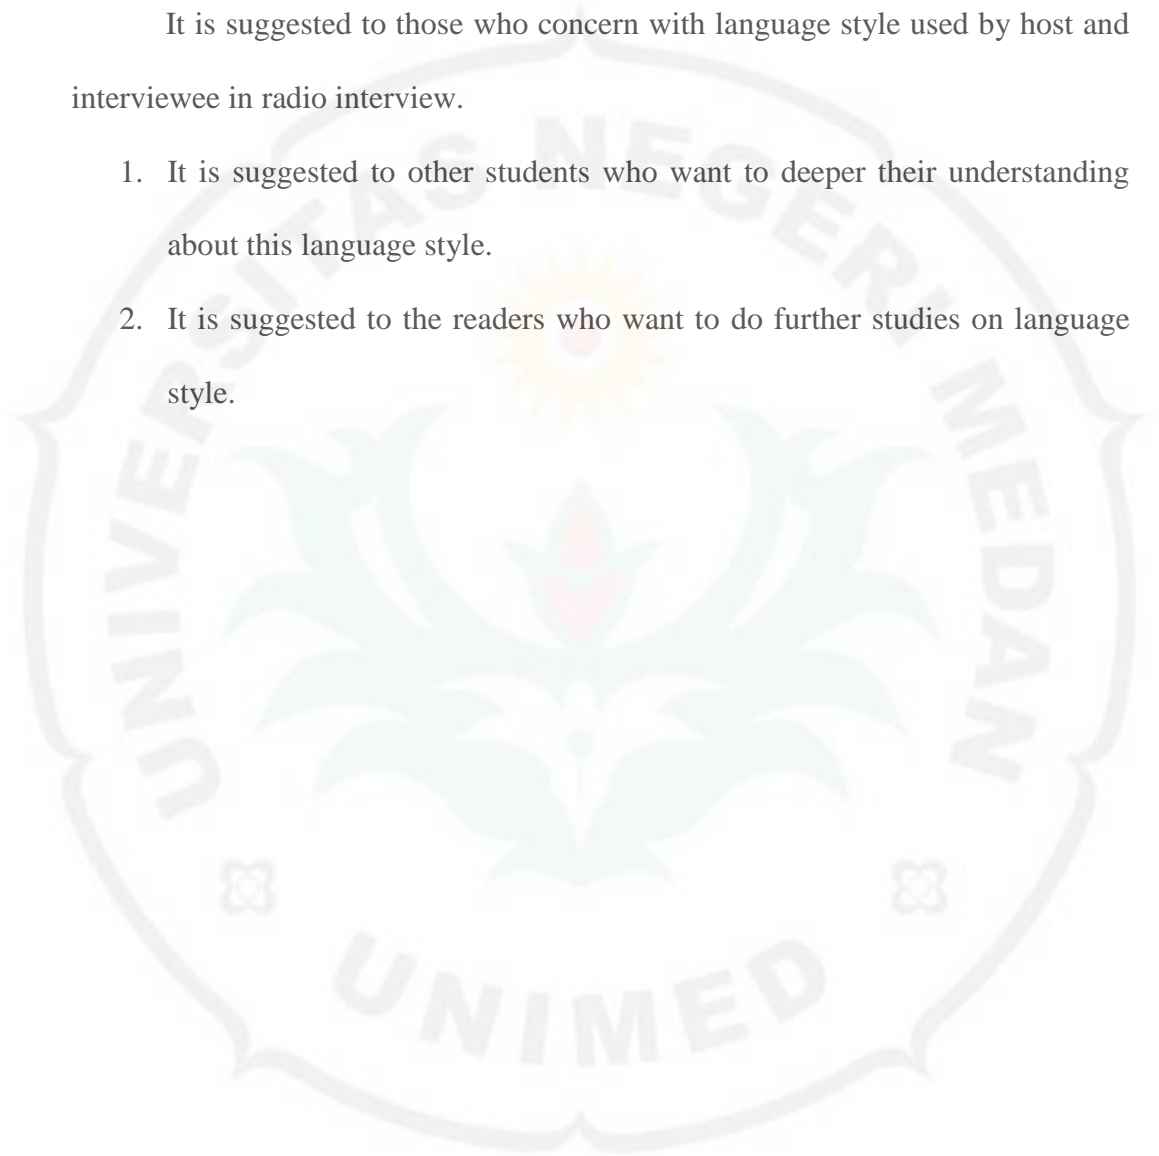

After analyzing the types of language style used by the host and the interview in KISS FM radio interview, the conclusions of this study are presented as follows:

1. The host of KISS FM radio used three types of language style, they were consultative style, casual style, and intimate style. The interviewee only used two types of language style, they were consultative style and casual style.
2. The host used consultative style as the most dominant style and the interviewee also used consultative style as the most dominant style. The host used consultative style dominantly because the purpose of the host generally to gather information from the interviewee in order to reveal several things that never confessed by the interviewee to the radio listeners. The interviewee used consultative style dominantly because the interviewee was asked many questions by the host. As the result, the interviewee replied all questions using the consultative style that used quite long sentences to fulfill the host's curious.
