

CHAPTER V CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

By having analyzed the data, the writer has found :

1. There are 8 grammatical errors, they are : noun, pronoun, verb, adverb, adjective, article, preposition and conjunction.
2. There are any different grammatical errors made between the students of Grade IX Natural Science and Social Science in writing narrative.
3. The dominant error was verb.
4. The dominant error was Incomplete application of rules
5. The natural science students are not always better than social science students. It can be seen from the average score of natural science class is 73,8 while social science class is 78,6. In this case we can't say that the natural science students are good in writing text rather than social science students. This study has proved the perspective which has been made by the society is not always true, it can be seen well from the results that have been done by the students.

B. Suggestion

Based on my research, it is suggested that :

1. English teacher gives more explanation in grammatical aspect especially about noun, pronoun, verb, adverb, adjective, article, preposition and conjunction.
2. The students must study and practice English, especially in grammatical aspect.
