

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusions

After analyzing this movie, finally writer went to the conclusions that presented as follows:

1. Following Manes and Wolfson's classification, some characters in Killers movie employ two topics of compliment, namely the topic of appearance and topic of skills/abilities. Each topic is divided into two types. The topic of appearance is divided into personal appearance and possession, while the topic of skills/abilities is divided into general ability and specific-act ability. Therefore, there are four topics of compliment that are employed by some characters in Killers movie. The topics are personal appearance, possession, general ability, and specific-act ability. Both females and males compliment other people's skills/abilities more than other topic; and the appearance takes up second place.
2. Considering the ways and the intentions of the delivered compliments, the addressees also respond to the compliments in various ways. There are six types of compliment responses that are employed by some characters in Killers Movie. In responding the compliments, most of the addressees use the first type of the compliment responses, namely appreciation token. The appreciation token includes verbal and nonverbal acceptance. There are five data including verbal appreciation token. Moreover, there are six data including nonverbal appreciation token. The addressee only smile and laugh when they respond to the compliment. In this context, the addressee's smile and laugh are interpreted as a simple acceptance of the compliments.

3. In this movie, gender differences did not influence the ways used in expressing compliments between characters. However, in this current study, women more often receive praise not because as the basis of gender.

B. Suggestions

There are several suggestions that writer could offer to readers towards compliment and the responses, they are:

1. For English department students, they may use this study as a reference to understand the study of Sociolinguistics related to compliment behavior based on gender differences and apply it in the daily life especially in giving and respond. In addition, they can observe the differences between males and females in compliment behavior in order to give appropriate strategy in giving and responding to it.
2. For future researchers, this study, of course, still needs improvement.

With regard to a compliment behavior, many other questions may arise, such as the offer of compliments and responses based on gender with different ages, different relationships, or different status. Those factors should be taken into account in further research since it can not be assumed that all English speakers offer compliments and respond to compliments in the same way.
