

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

A. Conclusions

After analyzing the modality used by badminton's commentators in All England Championship 2016, the conclusions were presented as follows:

1. There were four types of modality which exist in the statements delivered by the badminton's commentators, namely probability, usuality, obligation and inclination.
2. The most dominant type of modality used by badminton's commentators was probability with 61,9%.
3. The commentators used the probability in their statement because they wanted to give the prediction of many possibilities of many situations during the match and obligation to strengthen their suggestion while the inclination described the willingness of the players and usuality showed a certain frequency.

B. Suggestions

Based on the results of the research, some suggestions were elaborated follows:

1. For further researchers, they are expected to gain from this result of research as one of the resources to conduct research on the related field.

The next researchers are suggested to develop the topic not only the types and functions of modality only, but also the value or degree of the modality itself when conducting similar research. Beside that, the next researcher can expanded the field from another discipline such as economic, politics and so on.

2. For the students, it is suggested to be more aware that they have intuitively used all types of modality in their daily life. Thus the students need to be able to utilise the functions of modality depending on the context of interpersonal relationship in order to manage a good relationship with other people.
