

CHAPTER FIVE

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

5.1. Conclusion

After analyzing the data on the radio dialogues, conclusions are drawn as follows:

1. The dominant proportion of Mental Process used by the speakers in the radio dialogues, means that the types of experience negotiated in the text is dominately used by the action within of human mind. Further, it means that the function of the speakers is to develop both the nation and country.
2. The dominant proportion of Modality used by the speakers five seventh of the total clauses in the radio dialogues means that the speakers have certainty towards something and give some logical and real predictions in expressing the arguments.
3. The dominant proportion of Epithet used in the radio dialogue is eight eleventh of the total clauses, implies that in expressing the arguments the speakers are influenced by their subjectivity in judging, giving facts, value, and expressions.

5.2. Suggestions

In relation to the conclusions, suggestions are staged as follows:

1. It is suggested for other researchers who want to conduct further studies on interpersonal function to apply different criteria to have more extended studies.
2. It is suggested for the BKKBN Officers who are also get involved in the radio dialogue should be more certain to every explanation that he/she delivers, seems BKKBN information is in their field.
3. It is suggested for that the radio listeners in the radio dialogue should learn the use of metaphorical expression in the radio program by which they can intensify communication.

