

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This thesis has been written in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Magister Humaniora in English Applied Linguistics, Graduate Program, The State University of Medan (UNIMED).

The writer admits that he has indeed faced some difficulties in completing this thesis which lasted for 6 months; however, it comes to its present format with the help of his consultants.

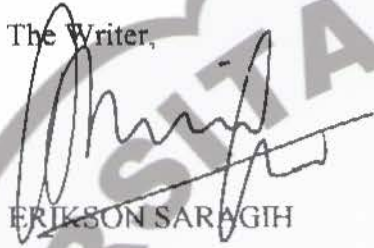

For this reason, he wishes to express his heartiest gratitude to Prof. M. Butar-butar, M.A, P.hD, his first consultant and Prof. D.P. Tampubolon M.A, P.hD, his second consultant for their generous assistance, advice and precious time spent on correcting the thesis manuscripts. His special thanks also go to Amrin Saragih, M.A, P.hD, Dr. Berlin Sibarani M.Pd, and Prof. Bahren Umar Siregar, M.A, P.hD, for their continuous constructive criticism, corrections and suggestions on the manuscripts during the thesis proposal seminar and the research result seminar. The writer's warm and sincere thanks also go to Prof. Dr. Jawasi Naibaho, the Head of LTBI program and Meisuri, M.A, for their advice and valuable encouragement; and all lecturers who have assisted him with their knowledge and experience during his academic years at the institution.

His deep, heartiest gratitude also goes to Tiarnida Nababan, SST, his beloved wife, who has supported him patiently and wisely in writing the thesis. Also, it goes to all his classmates who cannot be written one by one for their help to improve the manuscript as well as their constructive criticism.

Finally, he is fully aware that the thesis is not yet on its best format; therefore, any constructive criticism and advice from readers aimed at its further improvement will be highly appreciated and warmly welcome, so that it can give significant contribution to the study of request in Bahasa Indonesia.

Medan, September 9, 2004

The Writer,

ERIKSON SARAGIH

Reg. No. 025010053

