A. Conclusions

With reference to the findings as described previously, conclusions are drawn as the following

1. IRC conversations are represented in their realizations as abbreviation and acronyms, syllabic writings, emoticons, and numbers.
2. Of the four types of realizations in IRC conversations, words in abbreviation and acronyms and syllabic writings are discovered to be the most frequently used in the conversations.
3. Sociologically misunderstanding in IRC conversations was often caused by the lack of the knowledge of the terms used especially to the new comers. This is the cause of a possibility where the users of IRC and the interlocutor do not understand what they were saying.
4. The users of IRC with more knowledge about terms used tend to use much more new terms that others users do not have.
5. The language used in written medium is naturally conducted.
6. Tendency of using special words to be the dominant one in reaching the short time as well as ignore the users who gets lack of knowledge of chatting.
7. Conversations in IRC gives a perfect enjoyment to those users around the world.

8. All the users become more and more familiar and vice versa even sometimes plan to meet directly when they want to do it and among users do not have a tie or closer relationship when conducting conversation in IRC.
9. It is found that the patterns of interaction (moves and dynamics of exchange) follow natural conversations in terms of moves and structure of exchange.
10. IRC program has obvious some weaknesses where the users ignore using it, such as complicated button keys and English is still used to execute the program.

B. Suggestions

The present study is mainly concerned with how are IRC conversation used by the users therefore people who want to study more about special terms used in IRC should study more seriously to increase their knowledge in enriching their vocabularies and to involve their mutual understanding in the multilingual communities and it is suggested that some further studies can be made on the implication of the present study. Those who want to expand their knowledge about computer especially interaction in IRC, it is suggested that frequently use of terms will be beneficial for users and of course it automatically increases their contacts to every users. In addition, It is good for excellent users whom understood the IRC program as well as knew its usage, share with others around Indonesian students and layman as well because someday it will be easier for us to communicate.
