CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

5.1 Conclusions

Based on the findings in the previous chapter, the researcher concludes:

(1) Based on data of the elements of transitivity found in the speech , it is concluded that from Donald Trump's point of view, through material process which was dominantly found, ISIS is the one responsible for actively doing brutal terrors around the world and Donald Trump himself is the most suitable candidate president for the United States, as he described himself, through material process which was dominantly found, as someone with power who will obviously eliminate ISIS with his future programs in his future administration. In addition, with quite significant number of verbal processes, Donald Trump, also shows his power to persuade other nations to work together with him to eliminate ISIS.

(2) In convincing his audience, they way Trump used his language in his speech on ISIS is by signifying a sense of solidarity and cohevation among the audience. This is show through his use of pronoun we in high frequency in describing himself and his future administration.

(3) There are three Donald Trump's ideologies on ISIS in his speech, they are ISIS is indeed a threat, ISIS is islamic, and ISIS potential people are immigrants. This confirms his decision in banning muslims to enter the United States.

5.2 Suggestions

The researcher can give some suggestions for the next researchers or other people who are interested in this research, as follows:

(1)   The research by using Transitivity Analysis and Critical Discourse Analysis is a very interesting research topic because it reveals meaning behind a language as social practice. However in this research, the researcher only took one data source which is a political speech by Donald Trump which was delivered during one of his presidential campaign rally, at Youngstown State University, in Youngstown, Ohio, August 15th, 2016. Therefore, the next researcher can take more other sources about Donald Trump's discourse especially about ISIS in various sources, to find out the Donald Trump's ideology on ISIS in general.

(2)   Three next researcher can conduct research to reveal Donald Trump's ideologies on ISIS through other SFL's system, which are Mood and Modality System or Theme-Rheme system. Mood and Modality System is used to see the relation between speaker and listener through production of language. This study focuses more on clause as meaning exchange. While Theme-rheme system is used to see how language creates text or discourse in certain condition. Theme-rheme focused more on clause as message.

(3)   The result of this research is expected to be a consideration for people especially public figures so they can choose the use of their language carefully because language can reflect their ideology.