

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Based on the data, it is possible to conclude that the resulting language attitude is more dominant, less good, or negative language attitude. This can be seen from the types of slang they use, that many are not aware of the language norms and are not loyal to defending their language and allowing them to be influenced by foreign languages. The influencing factor is the topic of conversation(the subject being discussed). The existence of the topic of discussion, the response in conversation is one of important to become good communication with each other and can act according to the flow of the topic.

B. Suggestion

The habit of using slang in communication will make it more difficult for someone to use their language that is under linguistic rules, especially in a formal environment, and can produce positive language attitudes. Vice versa if someone is complacent with terms in slang and foreign languages, then the pride and loyalty in a person will slowly disappear. Therefore, speak well and correctly. "Speaking properly and correctly" can be interpreted as using a variety of languages that are in line with the target, following the correct and appropriate language rules in certain conditions and situations.
